What a Day

At the rate Doris Day is putting mileage on her new convertible, it will be an antiquated model before the car has its 1000-mile servicing.

Doris bought the car exactly one month ago and has amassed the startling total of 50 miles on the speedometer. The actress, who lives less than one mile from Warner Bros. Studio where she is working in the Technicolor musical "On Moonlight Bay," drives to work, parks it all day and drives home at night. Sundays she stays home and putters around the house.

At this rate the car will be almost two years old by the time it has its first checkup.

Joan Crawford Is Now The Boss

There have been some changes made since Joan Crawford and Eve Arden last appeared together in a film.

Five years ago, they were together in "Mildred Pierce," with Miss Arden as Miss Crawford's employer.

Now they are back together in Warner Bros.' "Goodbye, My Fancy," only this time it's vice versa, and Miss Arden is an employee of Miss Crawford.

* ★ *

Crawford Knew Without Coaching

Broderick Crawford, in Columbia's "Remember That Face," plays a cop who masquerades as a waterfront worker. Brod needed no special coaching for the part. Before he became an actor he worked as a stevedore on the New York docks and can still do a good job of running a winch.

* ★ *

Hall Spends Day Pitching Woo

While making "China Corsair" for Columbia, Jon Hall spent several hours filming a roughhouse scene in which he repeatedly threw Chinese actor Frank Woo through a pair of swinging doors. That night wife Frances Langford asked if Jon had had a tough day at the studio. "Not at all, honey," he replied, "I spent practically the whole day pitching Woo."

Erudition Runs Rampant In Outdoor Drama

Erudition is rampant in Warner Bros.' "Raton Pass," even though it's an outdoor action thriller, with guns and villains and horses!

Star Dennis Morgan graduated from Carroll College of Milwaukee which gives that city its frequently used right to claim him as its own. He also worked on a newspaper there for a short time.

Dorothy Hart, one of his two lovely leading ladies, is a graduate of Western Reserve University of Cleveland where she was once homecoming queen and won recognition for the highest scholarship rating of any student in the school.

Patricia Neal, who co-stars with Dennis, attended Northwestern University for two years, but her stage career caught up with her and prevented completion of her courses. She is still very "college conscious."

Scott Forbes, one of the two principal villains, has degrees from Balliol college of Oxford and the Sorbonne in Paris.

The other "heavy," Steve Cochran, attended the University of Wyoming for one year.

Big Actress Added To "Force Of Arms"

One of motion picture's biggest actresses, 300-pound Anna Demetrio, has been signed by Warner Bros. for a role in "Force Of Arms," starring William Holden, Nancy Olson and Frank Lovejoy.

Miss Demetrio, who was born in Italy and is well known for her many portrayals of Continental Europeans, will play an Italian cafe owner in the wartime love story. Michael Curtiz directs, with Anthony Veiller producing for Warners.

A Screen First

Edmund Grainger's RKO Radio Technicolor film, "Flying Leathernecks," is the first motion picture presenting the activities of the Marine Corps air arm. The story dramatizes the air support given to Guadalcanal ground troops by Marine fighter pilots.

Odd Superstition Rough On Actor

Recently when Gene Nelson left the house bound for work, his wife gave him a healthy kick in the posterior and his small son threw a shoe at him.

It was no domestic fracas, the dancing star explained.

Mrs. Nelson and Master Alan Christopher were merely wishing Mr. Nelson good luck on his first day before the Technicolor cameras in Warner Bros.' Technicolor musical, "Golddiggers in Las Vegas."

This kicking business and shoe throwing is based on an old theatrical superstition and means only the best for the recipient, and the Nelsons are dyed-in-the-wool show folk.

"Miriam swings a mean right," said her husband ruefully.

That Cheshire Cat Grin Explained

So you've never seen "a grin like a Cheshire Cat"? Well, you can see the cat with the grin—or the grin with the cat—when Walt Disney's "Alice in Wonderland" reaches the screen as an RKO Radio Technicolor release.

Wald-Krasna Concludes Deal With ANTA

Jerry Wald and Norman Krasna have announced plans for the most star-studded picture of all time. Titled "The Great Moments," it will be made in conjunction with the American National Theatre and Academy, or ANTA for short. To be filmed in New York for RKO Radio distribution, "The Great Moments" will present 20 of the best-known scenes from the American stage. The entire ANTA membership roster—just about every great name in the theatre today—will be available for the picture, with each actor doing his most famous role.

Peck No Longer Shies From Horses

Gregory Peck once shied from horses the way some horses shy from actors.

That's when Peck was a lively youngster who wanted to learn how to ride. But in one of his first experiences on the back of a horse he lost his saddle and came up with a broken arm. From then on, the idea of riding a horse conjured up visions of more broken bones to the young Peck, and it was some time before he was able to convince himself that he could ride again.

Today, however, Peck is one of the ablest horsemen in the cinema capital — not only for professional purposes, but also in his private life.

He does some of his most spirited riding in his new starring picture, "Only The Valiant," a Cagney production for Warner Bros. distribution.

"I suppose," Peck says, "that I wouldn't have lost so much time suffering from horse fever if I had had the courage to get right back on after I was first thrown—but that's a little difficult to do—especially with a broken arm."

Peck is determined that his sons will grow up to become riders, too, and is already starting to teach the oldest one the theory and practice of good horsemanship.

Six Nations Take Bow on "Kon-Tiki"

Six nations contributed to the success of "Kon-Tiki," daring Odyssey by six landlubbers across the Pacific, whose exciting adventures you'll soon be seeing on the screen. Norway and Sweden are the countries of the crew's origin. Thor Heyerdahl worked out the details of the raft voyage in New York's Explorers Club, and our army provided the food rations, which three of his crew tested. In Ecuador's jungle the crew felled the stout balsa trees for the raft. Peru put its naval shipbuilding yard at Heyerdahl's disposal for its construction. And after the raft's crash landing on the reefs of French-owned Tuamotu Island, France had a ship put out from Tahiti to pick up the raft and return it to Norway.
